MIGH PRICE FOR BEEF.

to pothing has the cost of living bicreased more of late years than in the item of butcher's meat. This may be due partly to decrease of cattle by the drought of three or four years ago, and partly to increase of demand. But these two causes combined do not sufficiently account for present rates. Fifteen cents a pound, with a rumor afloat of a still higher rise, is a stiff price for poor families with small incomes to pay. The breeders and raisers of stock have been credited with disproportionate advance of first cost; but inquiry at the proper sources convinces us that the butchers are making more than their fair source of profits. What they purchase wholesale for seven or eight cents they are retailing at fifteen cents. After allowing a large margin for expenses and reasonable profit, they ought certainly to furnish consumers at a lower rate than the prevailing one. As the hide and tallow of an animal are worth eight or ten dollars, these should be conprovided the beef is sold at prices to cover original cost and expenses. We do not object to people who wish to include in luxuries being compelled to pay high for them; but necessaries should be placed as low as possible. Everybody admits that beef is a necessary.

Our daily contemporary accuses us of inventing the rumors of the disruption in the Ministry. We emphatically deny it, and in proof we have only to say that our space is too limited to call for fabrications to fill it,-we can get enough without that. And if its representatives would circulate a little more and leave off the fabrication of letters supposed to be from the outside publie, they would find out that the ramors come from those who are known to be outwardly the strongest supporters of the Ministry, and therefore may reasonably be sup posed to know what they say.

The Cruise of the Sappho.

After a rough passage up the Haat 9 o'clock on the evening of the 20th August. Early next morning she entered the port of Hana, being the first man-of-war that had entered missioners she steamed out to look for a sunken rock a few miles off tains Clark and Haley with some of them before long. the calteers visited Kohala. Captain Clark and the guests with some of the officers went in the steam launch to the head of the lagoon and landed for a few minutes to inspect a large rice mill run by water power; returning down the lagoon to the ship, the anchor was weighed and the Sappho proceeded under easy steam to Honolulu harbor. The Sappho had been placed by the Admiral at the disposal of Major Wodehouse, who invited Mr. Cleghorn to accompany him. The guests were genuinely gratified by the courteous treatment received at the hands of the Captain and officers.
